GRANDMA KELLAR

Will Go to California in Spite of Her Injuries.

THE OLD LADY'S EXPERIENCE

As She Was Starting on a Long Journey with Her Family—Fell from the Train in the Snow and Not Missed Until She Was Left Many Miles Behind—Kindly Railroad Officials.

CHICAGO, Jan. 29.—The old lady who is going to start for California Saturday night has been occupying a private room in a city hospital for two months, says the Record. She is nearly 70 years of age, and still she isn't anticipating any great hardship in the journey. She has had her husband.

People who lived near the Kellar farm in Michigan were surprised when they heard that the family had sold the place and expected to go west. Grandma Kellar was 75 years old, Grandma five years younger, and they had lived there for a great many years. They wanted a milder climate for their declining years. John, the eldest son, thought that the climate of southern California was the ideal place, and the rest all agreed.

John is 45 years old. He and his wife Mary are blessed with divers and sundry good children, the smallest of whom is a baby. Sarah, John's sister, is a widow, with two or three children, and her health is not good. William, John's brother, is still a bachelor, and he joined the majority and voted for California. Grandma Kellar had done well in Michigan and he did not lack means to do what he wanted to do. The decision once made there was no time lost. A buyer was found for the farm. The stock was sold at auction, and all the property except the household treasures which were to be taken west, was converted into cash.

Neighbors who were heartily interested in all the doings of the Kellars, were liberal with their advice. Every one who had a friend in California offered information. Requests for circulars were sent to a number of land agents. Advertisements of big dams and irrigation ditches and arid lands well proportioned and cheap excursions and enormous profits per acre filled their mail. Finally the agent who made the most reasonable and modest claims sold them his land. The destination was settled. The day for the start was fixed.

Wanted a Drink of Water.

Grandpa and Grandma Kellar felt a little nervous over the journey. As to the outcome they had no fear, for William had gone on ahead and his letters from California were glowing. The Kellars were to be members of a "personally conducted" party which was to start from Chicago, and every comfort for the journey had been provided. The night before midnight, the train from Detroit to Chicago stopped at a little station in southern Michigan and the Kellars got aboard. They considered the journey a short one, measured by the days they were to travel, and scorned the idea of taking a sleeper. The chair car offered them very comfortable quarters. It didn't take them very long to get settled. The second generation and the third generation scattered about through the car wherever single seats could be found. John took pains to provide grandma and grandma with seats together, and quietness was over all.

Grandma felt foggy. Her feet hurt, and she took off her shoes. Her dress waist was uncomfortable. The lights in the car were low and she slipped it off, wrapping her shawl about her to be warm enough. One hour and then another went by. Grandma Kellar wanted a drink of water. She stumbled over grandma's outstretched foot, and uttered the almighty "Oh!" Her head swam with the motion of the car, but she trudged bravely on till she reached the rear door. There was no water cooler in sight. Grandma had a faint remembrance of a water tank just outside the door. She stepped over the threshold, drew the door shut, and she has never been able to tell just what happened then.

She is Missed.

It was about 4 o'clock in the morning when John awoke from a troubled dream. He aroused himself and decided to go back to see how the old people were resting. When he reached the chairs where he had left them grandma was snoring in a half-hearted way. But grandma was not there.

"Where's mother?" John asked, as he took his father by the arm.

Grandpa opened his eyes and looked around into the empty chair beside him.

"I thought she was here; I don't know where she is," he replied wearily.

John was worried. He looked in every seat in the car and did not find his mother. He roused all the rest of the family, and then the other passengers, but no one knew anything about the old lady. The conductor and a brakeman came.

"Now every one who has left the train at stations," said the former.

"She hasn't got off."

This seemed to be proved by the shoes and the dress waist which were found.

Every car from tender to rear sleeper was searched, but fruitlessly.

Then the conductor went with his lantern and examined the play form of the chair car. A light snow had fallen for an hour at midnight and then stopped. In the snow were the two footprints, and then a space brushed bare, from step to step, down one side. That was all.

Grandma Kellar had fallen from the train.

The hearts of the Kellar family were heavy when the train drew up at the next station and they descended. They feared never to see grandma alive again.

Telegrams were sent out by the train officials to every station that had been passed, to all train stations following, to be on the lookout for the old lady. Another message was sent to the Chicago officials of the road, and under their instruction an engine and car started back from the nearest division station to find the lost one.

At 6 o'clock, as dawn was breaking, a train was running slowly toward Chicago, the engineer and fireman, each of whom had an old mother of his own, keeping careful watch. In a snow-drift at the bottom of a slight embankment the fireman saw signs of a fall. Down the embankment was a furrow as if some one had slid through the snow.

He warned the man at the throttle and speed was lessened. Around a curve, 200 yards ahead, caught in a cattle guard where the track crossed a fence, was Grandma Kellar half unconscious.

The trainmen made her as comfortable as possible during the rest of the run. Thirty miles further on the other members of the family boarded the train and hastened to see grandma.

"Don't worry, father," she said. "I'll be all right and go to California yet."

But they were doubtful.

Well Cared For.

When the train reached Chicago the finest ambulance in the city, a thoroughly competent nurse and the company's own surgeon were in waiting.

A careful journey was made to the hospital. There a private room was secured, and the surgeon made his examination. Grandma's right wrist was broken. One rib was broken. Her feet were slightly frozen. But she was chipper as could be, and vowed she would get well.

As she had walked 200 yards through the snow after her fall, with those injuries, and so quickly dressed, her vitality and to be acknowledged.

The surgeon suggested that the shock was so great she might not get well at all, but he conceded that if the shock was not fatal, the other injuries would heal and she might attempt the journey.

John asked grandma who should stay with her. She asked for the hospital regulations, and found that no one could be with her constantly. Then she answered him:

"All of you must go on to California to-night just as if nothing had happened," she said. "There's not one who can stay, or who could do any good if you did stay."

"But, mother," protested all the family. "You can't stay alone in Chicago. You'll get lonesome."

"My eyes are good enough yet to read the big print Bible if you get it out of the trunk. What good would it do for me to stay? He's too old. John has got to take care of all of you on the trip. Mary's got a baby. Mary's got all she can do with her own health and the children. It's just coast board for some of you to stay here in Chicago, and then they'll not see much of me. You just go on to California on the excursion to-night, and I'll come when I get ready!"

And they did.

The surgeon told them when evening came that grandma was getting along all right. The railroad company was paying every expense and sparing none to get the best attention. The tickets were bought, the party was formed.

Some of the good ladies who visit the hospital found Grandma Kellar and loved her for her cheerfulness and her energy. Some of the wayfarer officials told the story at home, and their wives wanted to see the one who had had so strange an experience. They made one visit and then many more. Grandma had no chance to get lonesome, and she has really enjoyed her stay at the great hospital. Every one there, from superintendent to janitor, is her friend.

Saturday night one of these very railway officials and his wife were going to start for Los Angeles, and they have asked grandma for the pleasure of her company. They have assured her that they will take good care of her and that the car doors will be locked at night. She is going with them.

The Pig Iron Trade.

CHICAGO, Jan. 29.—The Industrial World to-morrow will say:

The pig iron market shows an active inquiry in lots of 1,000 to 2,000 tons. Much of this delay is due to the fact that prices are $2.50 to $3.00 higher on Northern foundry grades than they were a year ago, hence the hesitancy.

Finished iron and steel are active, and a contract for between 8,000 and 10,000 tons of tank steel for a pipe line was placed at an advance of $3 per ton over the price current of the previous week. Billets are higher at $19.50 and in considerable demand.

Perhaps All Were Butchered.

HERMOSILLO, Mex., Jan. 29.—A terrible fate is believed to have befallen a party of five gold prospectors who left here several weeks ago for the interior of Tabasco state, which is inhabited by the Seris tribe of Indians. There were six members of the exploring party originally, but one of the men has arrived at a ranch near here and reports that he and his companions came upon the bodies of the others, and that they were all taken captive and prepared to be taken to the butcher when he succeeded in making his escape.

Got the Minimum Punishment.

SPECIAL DISPATCH to the Intelligencer.

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., Jan. 29.—Scott Kimes, who shot B. F. Hall four times, seriously wounding him, last month, and who was tried last week, and found guilty of unlawful shooting, was this morning sentenced to twelve hours in jail and $50 fine. Before sentencing him Judge Jackson overruled the motion for a new trial. When the sentence was pronounced a great crowd of spectators applauded. Kimes shot Hall for breaking up his household.

That Herd of Buffalo.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Jan. 29.—The herd of wild buffalo which disappeared several months ago, were seen a few days ago near the Rio Grande border, Pecos county, by Sam Hillington. Mr. Hillington at once communicated his discovery to Dr. J. B. Taylor, of this city. Dr. Taylor will at once take steps for their capture. The Smithsonian institution will have a representative in the capturing party.

A Remarkable Escape.

CHICAGO, Jan. 29.—Victor Donald, a janitor in the security building had a remarkable escape from death to-day. He accidentally plunged head foremost down the elevator shaft from the ninth floor, but in striking against the side of the shaft caught the wire screen at the sixth story and with his nails and teeth stripped from his fingers clung to his hold until fellow employees rescued him.

The Kentucky Ballot.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Jan. 29.—A special from Frankfort to the Post says: No material change occurred in the seventh ballot in joint assembly to-day for United States senator.

The roll call showed 124 members present. They voted to elect sixty-eight. The ballot resulted: Hunter 66; Blackburn 67; Buckner 9; Wilson 1; John Young Brown 1.

Uhl May Get It.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 29.—The name of Edwin P. Uhl, the assistant secretary of state, has been mentioned prominently in the gossip in regard to the appointment of the ambassadorship at Berlin. His intimate knowledge of all matters under diplomatic consideration with Germany would make his appointment eminently desirable.

A Tragedy in Two Acts.

COLVILLE, Wash., Jan. 29.—Judge Arthur sentenced Adolph Niese and his wife to twenty years in the penitentiary for beating their ten-year-old son to death. Shortly after the prisoners were taken from the court room and placed in their cells both cut their throats with a razor. Niese is dead and his wife is in a critical condition.

The McDowell Lynching.

BLUEFIELD, W. Va., Jan. 29.—Many of the best known negroes of the mining region held a quiet conference at Richwood last night to take steps with reference to yesterday's lynching. A committee, it is said, has been appointed to investigate the lynching. Excitement runs high and it is not known what turn affairs may take.

New Postmaster.

SPECIAL DISPATCH to the Intelligencer.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 29.—J. S. Morgan has been appointed postmaster at Coldwater, Dade county, vice J. K. Donohue, resigned.

The Discovery Saved His Life.

Mr. G. Callouette, Druggist, Benavilla, Ill., says: "To Dr. King's New Discovery I owe my life. Was taken with La Grippe and tried all the physicians for miles about, but no avail, and was given up and told I could not live. Having Dr. King's New Discovery in my store I sent for a bottle and began its use and from the first dose began to get better, and after using three bottles was up and about again. It is worth its weight in gold. We won't keep store or home without it." Got a free trial at Logan Drug Co.'s drug store.

FOR a pain in the chest a piece of flannel dampened with Chamberlain's Pain Balm and bound over the seat of the pain, and another on the back between the shoulders, will afford prompt relief. This is especially valuable in cases where the pain is caused by cold and there is a tendency toward pneumonia. C. R. Goetze, W. W. Irwin, C. Schenck, C. Menckemeller, John Klark, W. H. Hogue, H. C. ## HER FACE HER FORTUNE.

Good Looks Women's Strongest Attraction.

How to Have a Clear and Brilliant Complexion.

Women, since the beginning of time, have ruled by their beauty. It is the source of their pride and their power. By the fascination of their beauty they attract and conquer. It is therefore a woman's first thought, ay, her first duty, to establish and maintain her beauty in its highest perfection.

All women are by nature beautiful. Beauty does not consist of regular features. Many of the most noted beautiful women of the world's history had decidedly irregular features. Beauty means attractiveness, and attractiveness is commanded by clearness of skin, purity of color, brilliancy of complexion, vivacity of expression, sparkling eyes and rosy lips.

All these attributes of beauty must come from within the system. No external application, no face powders, washes or preparations can give anything but an artificial look. Beauty must first of all be natural; it must glow in the skin from within.

The readers first thought is, how can I improve and maintain my beauty? Easily enough. First and foremost, you must have good health. By health is not meant that you feel fairly well, you must get your nerves strong and vigorous, for nothing marks and lines the face like the worry of weak nerves; you must get your blood enriched and pure, for it is the blood which gives that natural rosy glow to your face and lips which you art can imitate. You must keep stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels in natural activity, for the sluggish action of these organs cause the skin to become dark, sallow, bilious and clogged with impurities and humors.

To do all these things, to keep the system in perfect condition, use that greatest of modern discoveries, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. It will not only give you perfect health, but the beauty which you so ardently desire. It will make your skin pure, clear and fair, your features full and plump, give you a brilliant complexion with rich, red lips, and put the glow of health and color into your cheeks.

To prove this to your complete satisfaction, read these few of the vast number of enthusiastic testimonials received from grateful women who know from their personal experience, the wonderful effects of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy on their complexions. They will find advice and example and you will be pleased as you are surprised at the wonderful improvements in your looks.

Mrs. Mary Francis Lytle, of 2 Hunter Alley, Rochester, N. Y., says: "I was very pale and delicate—had no color. I took Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy and used it as well and strong, my face is plump and cheeks red, and my complexion pure."

Miss Alice Hopkins, of 632 So. Tenth St., Philadelphia, Pa., says: "There was an entire loss of healthy color in my face. After taking Dr. Greene's Nervura system was toned up, the natural color returned and the effect on my complexion was most satisfactory."

Mrs. W. W. Daniels, 229 East 87th St., New York City, says: "Dr. Greene's Nervura made a wonderful improvement in my health and that dark sallow look left my face. My friends hardly knew me. I have gained in flesh and am like a different person."

Mrs. S. C. Allen, of 125 Pearl Street, Portland, Me., says: "There was hardly any more color in my face and hands than in chalk. Dr. Greene's Nervura made me well and restored my natural color and complexion."

Mrs. Elizabeth Brown, of 236 Hartwell's Ave., Providence, R. I., says: "My face broke out with pimples and I was almost giving up in despair when I used Dr. Greene's Nervura. Now I am well and strong, thanks to this wonderful remedy."

Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy is purely vegetable and perfectly harmless and is the discovery and prescription of the successful physician, Dr. Greene, of 35 West 14th St., New York City, who can be consulted free, personally or by letter.

USE NO SOAP

with Pearline. 'Twould be absurd. It isn't necessary. Pearline contains everything of a soapy nature that's needed or that's good to go with it. And Pearline is so much better than soap that it has the work all done before the soap begins to take any part. You're simply throwing away money. It's a clear waste of soap—and soap may be good for something, though it isn't much use in washing and cleaning, when Pearline's around.
